SALUTATORY.

In assuming the duties and responsibilities of this journal, as Proprietor and controlling Editor. I deem it of no special impor-tance that I shall minutely set forth its future policy, or elaborately define what will be its political character. My Editorial career, since it began in 1836, and interrupted since that time by but short intervals, is not unknown to western readers of all parties. To say that it has been consistently and unswervingly Democratic, through the mutations and vicissitudes of that ancient, indomitable party, might be considered ample I certainly have spent that lengthy period to but little advantage,—have been acrive in all contests for sound principles to in-considerable purpose,—have signally failed to impress upon my patrons and readers a of newspaper labors, in Ohio and elsewhere, conviction of my sincerity as a democratic. lors journalist, if, at this late day, I cannot be without giving bond in a minute and coniprehensive detail of the entire policy I shall pursue. I am a Democrat; ever have been a Democrat. I am proud to say that, throughout my political life, I have never The Negro Affletions in Illinois. swerved from sound principles. In all these essentials I can safely point to all my antecedents and to no very obscure record. now or in the future.

what the Democracy of this populous and wealthy Minmi Valley have long needed and their necessities demanded. If labor, zeal and industry, with the auxiliary of a complete outfit of new and modern material, can effect this end, and aided by such experience and talent as we may possess or can callist, then we assuredly will not fall

Success, however, cannot be achieved by our own talents and personal labors alone, A good newspaper and an energetic party scribers more than simply well-wishers, and Ontside of mere Politics there is a consideration of no small magnitude: It is Business. No feature in a city or town is more notable than the appearance and character of its newspapers. Advertising columns invariably denote the business character of a mercantile and manufacturing community. This proposition needs no claboration. To assail it as unsound would be folly. A greater folly, however, would it be in any business man, who, in conducting or endeavoring to extend his trading enterprises, would look inside of trading enterprises, would look inside of politics for his facilities and his resources. There are such narrow-minded men to be between in this. The liberal-minded man is never so foolish as to first inquire what are the political sentiments and antecedents of a customer before he will barter his. wares. The liberal-minded man never questions what are the doctrines of a nesespaper before he offers to it his patronage. He sees only through the clear lenz of Runingment.

In fine, one bark, newly rigged and newly manned, is launched upon the political and social sea, and we trustingly hope to avoid running it upon either quick-sands or breakers ahead.

H. H. ROBINSON.

Our Assistant.

Ma. D. G. Firen, our assistant in the general management of the different departments of the Exprise needs no word from us. Having been identified with the paper for years past, and possessing a comprehensive acquaintance with this community, we consider that his connection with it now will be of no small importance.

The statements made by the Commercial of yesterday, in regard to the assault upon Mr. Vallandigham, at Eaton, are, with a single exception, wholly notice. The real facts are, simply, that Mr. V. went on Monday night to Eaton, to argue a case in court; and did argue it on Taisday, remaining in town all day, and at the hotel till some time after dark. He went directly to the depot, and the train being behind time, remained at or near the depot for an hour, when, after he was upon the cars, some cowardly ruffigus threw stones. The train remained a quarter of an hour afterward at the depot, nothing further occurred, except land fulk and threats ontside. Mr. A. came down to this city the same night, and remained till last evening. The affair was disgraceful enough to the town and all concerned in it as it actually occurred; but, even with the

White Labor Ignored.

The Illinois State Register, in the follow ing very brief sentence, draws a picture of stressed and helpless condition: What I have been, I am; and I can discern the present social and political condition of nothing in the present state of affairs to the laboring people of that State, which no lately sunk in the Mississippi, and worth suggest any change of principle or opinion, doubt is truthful, and a sorry picture it certainly is. It might be drawn for a good It is our intention to make the EMPTON portion of Indiana as well as Southern Ohlo without being much exaggerated:

Negroes now swarm our State. They are doing the rough wood work and labor on buildings; they occupy the places of labor on the farm; they are employed as gardeners, as laborers, as mechanics in many instances. In fine, they are illing up all the classes formedly accurately by white many stances. In fine, they are illing up all the places formerly occupied by white men, when this State belonged to white men. And why are they so employed? Simply because they will work for less, can live on less, and require less than the white men. Who brought them here? They were induced to come here to degrade white labor and to take the the employment temporaorgan can readily be started, but to cou-tinue it and render it prosperous and useful, it must be supported. It requires sub-ider, but the real lovers of the negro, the scribers more than simply well-wishers, and it needs subscribers who will pay. A daily and weekly paper, in times like these, is no chameleou; air is not its only essential of vitality. We need not affirm that the more liberal its support the greater must be its law of the land, and in defiance of the exfacilities for improvement, and the more present will of the people, taken on a distinct issue presented in June, 1862. It is suffavident buth Homes our annual to should not be forgotten that the late conis self-evident truth. For or against the right of negroes voting or holding office, and for against laws giving effect to the said two any part; may we not confidently expect that all our democratic friends will actively perform theirs?
